Description

A lovely size, early 18th century oak dresser base with two drawers over geometric molded detail. A molded three planked solid oak top and the front of the dresser features geometric moldings applied to the drawer fronts. The two large working drawers, which are butt jointed, oak lined, incorporate their original turned oak knob drawer handles. All raised on front turned baluster legs with square block legs to the rear. The backboards, inset molded side panels and drawer linings are constructed of solid oak. This dresser features a rich brown original oak color and patina. England c.1720.
