Description

This Louis XIII period walnut table opens with a drawer on the front, the uprights are turned baluster and faceted on the upper part, they are connected by an X-shaped spacer and rests on ball feet. The top is solid and bordered by a bec de corbin molding. The drawer has a wrought iron knob. Some turned parts as well as the edge of the spacer were made of blackened wood, some traces of wear can be noted in places, nevertheless it represents a very nice contrast. This piece of furniture is in an excellent state of conservation, here and there a few small parts have been made. 17th century period. Tray dimensions, 71 cm x 54 cm, height 75 cm,
