spoon approx. 17.6 cm. The provenance is of exceptional historical significance. Karl Ernst Osthaus (1874-1921), industrialist and patron from Hagen, was Henry van de Velde's principal private patron in Germany: he entrusted van de Velde with the interior of the Folkwang Museum in Hagen (1900-1902) -- the first museum of modern art in Germany -- and the construction of his private residence, Villa Hohenhof (1906-1908), a reference Gesamtkunstwerk of van de Velde's oeuvre. The Osthaus-van de Velde relationship is one of the great collaborations of European Art Nouveau. Cutlery pieces bearing Osthaus's monogram are direct material witnesses to this relationship. Comparable pieces from Model III are held in the collections of the Bröhan-Museum Berlin, the Museum für Angewandte Kunst Cologne (inv. G 422), the Landesmuseum Württemberg Stuttgart and the Museum of Modern Art New York. Complete catalogue raisonné:
