Description

Rare and emblematic object of an era. Dog carts were very widespread in the 19th century and often called "the poor man's team". This one is very old and has 2 seats. Made of wood and iron, it remains beautifully crafted. Very charming. Very good condition. Possibility of changing the order of children's seats. The backs of the chairs are removable, so it is possible to sit face to face, back to back, both facing the rear or the front. A seat torn on the top but repairable without problem. the cart requires cleaning of the wood and metal parts.
