Description

"Allegories in the antique style", bronze, late 18th century around 1780. We present this pair of bronze sculptures representing two allegories in the antique style dating from the reign of Louis XVI, around 1780, very fashionable at that time. A great finesse emerges from his two sculptures both through the finesse of the carving and through the gesture and movement that they can express. They rest on a gray Sainte-Anne marble base. Private collection. In perfect condition. Dimensions: h.48 cm x d.15 cm.
