Description

Louis XVI style mahogany bookcase, trimmed with brass and topped with Carrara marble. It opens on the front with two glass doors with solid mahogany frames, mitered in the corners. In the lower part, each door is dark with a solid mahogany panel. The panels and windows are highlighted by brass strips forming ogee moldings. Between the doors, we find a slightly rounded brass joint cover. Closing of the two doors is done by a brass lock on the right door, accompanied by a brass entry with its key in working order. After opening, we discover the interior, composed of four shelves on racks, with half-round brass-covered edges. The sides of this bookcase have an attached half-column having four stopped grooves. The whole rests on four "spinning top" feet decorated with a brass collar
