Description

Each corner opens with a door, in rosewood veneer arranged in developed quatrefoils, highlighted with lemon tree and amaranth fillets with Greek corners. These doors, one of which opens to the right and the other to the left, have violet wood frames assembled with a miter cut. Each of them is equipped with an authentic working lock with entry and key. The cutaway uprights are veneered in rosewood also arranged in a developed pattern with a violet wood surround with knot pattern fillet and drop. The protruding, humped feet are covered with hooves. The interior offers two fixed shelves. These two pieces of furniture are each topped with a Royal Red grooved marble. This pair of 300-year-old corner cabinets, made according to the habits and customs of 18th century cabinetmakers, will
