Description

Jaguar Head Nail Or Tenon

Chavín culture style, Peru

Limestone

H. 15, L 16, Thickness 15 cm

Also known as a "nailed head" or cabeza clava, this sculpture is reminiscent of the architectural nails found on the façades of temples from the pre-Columbian Chavín civilisation.

This feline head may also represent a half-human, half-animal being. Its temples are decorated with two stylised avian heads,
