Description

Two shell cameos from the mid-19th century. The largest represents the goddess Hebe watering Jupiter's eagle, with great finesse of execution and very beautiful transparency. In good general condition, it shows traces of folding on the side (without traces of "regluing"), and measures 5 cm x 4 cm The second offers the profile of a young woman with a nicely draped neckline, it is in very good condition, slightly curved, and measures 3.7 cm x 2.5 cm. The price shown is for both, but we accept any reasonable offer on either separately...Very careful shipping in addition.
