Description

Oil on panel depicting a busy street scene with trees, houses and shops.

The frame is in gilded wood.

Good condition.

Painted and signed lower right by Edouard Febvre, French painter, watercolorist, pastelist and engraver, born in 1885 and died in 1967.

Passionate about the world of travelers, he produced a work where caravans and gypsies wander, in a atmosphere which restores the misery, cheerfulness and melancholy of its models.

The Paris of the poor, the fortifications, Montmartre also captivated him, and his paintings in a falsely naive mode give dignity and poetry to harsh daily poverty.
