Description

Desk chest called "scriban" in light, solid and molded walnut opening with a flap concealing a sinuous theater with niches and drawers overlooking four drawers in three rows. Curved "on all sides", it has its pull handles and its keyholes which are probably original. Very elegant,

It dates from the middle of the 18th century and it should be noted that its very reasonable price takes into account the restorations in its funds without however detracting from its very beautiful aesthetic appearance.
