280 EUR

Period : 19th century

Condition : Parfait état

Material : Sterling silver

Description

Very naturalistic posture in relief for this delightful lizard entirely paved with old rhinestones with its eyes made of small red stones.

The rhinestones are set in silver, hallmarked on the back 900 associated with the manufacturer's mark in the shape of an Etruscan urn.

This brand, which remained mysterious for years, ended up being associated with the "PARISIAN DIAMOND COMPANY" established in London between 1890 and 1910, which specialized in jewelry imitating the most beautiful jewelry and pearls from the Orient.

The last two photos show the same brooch for sale on a vintage advertisement and the luxury Regent Street store.
