Description

A pair of Louis XVI style armchairs in carved and molded beechwood, decorated with fluted and reeded moldings and connecting blocks adorned with stylized floral motifs. The medallion-shaped backrest, encircled by a finely molded cane, rests on slightly curved uprights. The recessed armrests, with inverted console supports, are fitted with cuffs. The wide, rounded seat rests on four tapered and fluted legs, characteristic of the Neoclassical vocabulary inherited from the 18th century. The upholstery is covered in brocaded silk with a polychrome floral design on a cream background, inspired by 18th-century fabrics. The decoration, composed of delicate floral scrolls, harmonizes beautifully with the geometric simplicity of the wooden frame. The reverse of the backrest features a
