Description

Pretty box in solid silver and polished agate around 1750, probably English.

It carries a later engraving of important anecdotal importance on the background.

There are an arm brandishing slave chains and the Latin text 'primus e stirpe', 'first of your lineage' or 'first of your race'.

Combined with the empty chains, we could assume that it is a gift to a liberated slave, the first of his lineage to be able to enjoy his status as a free citizen.

Above is engraved 'gift from a friend'
