Biography:

Ludger Larose, painter, drawing teacher, and free-thinking anticlerical, was born in Montreal in 1868.

He studied at the École des arts et métiers de Montréal with Abbé Joseph Chabert, a leading figure in art education in Quebec in the late 19th century.

His oeuvre comprises some 400 paintings, ranging from portraits commissioned by the bourgeoisie to genre scenes, still lifes, and landscapes. He was commissioned to paint portraits of three Montreal mayors. He also painted religious pictures for which he received commissions, still lifes, nudes, and urban scenes, then considered the incursion of a modern theme into painting. He also did graphic art.

Exhibitions:

Between 1895 and 1913, Larose exhibited seven times at the Art Association of Montreal Salon and twice at the Royal Canadian Academy.

The Musée du Québec, the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts, and the Beaver Brook Art Gallery in Fredericton have paintings by the artist.

Awards:

Larose won first prize in drawing at the Académie Delescluze in Paris during his stay.
