Charming plate with wavy border from the French Compagnie des Indes, China, commissioned for a French wedding during reign of Louis XV. circa 1860.

White porcelain, wing decorated of a garland of polychrome flowers, it presents a richly gilded alliance coat of arms under Marquis crown, two families, the Barbet of Aix en Provence, and on the right the Baissey of Longcourt, (Burgundy). Thanks to the previous owner for the information! It's charming, and rare, because it's a little-known provincial family.
