He began his artistic career by regularly exhibiting his works at the French artists' salon , of which he became a member, from the 1920s to 1929 (silver medal in 1927). He then traveled to Algeria, Tunisia, Spain and France, where he met different painters and artists who influenced his style. Bono settled permanently in Algeria in 1939, where he worked until his death in 1955. He painted seaside landscapes, sunsets with a rich and poetic palette of colors, oriental characters in
