Description

Magnificent and very large Empire centerpiece in gilded bronze attributed to the bronzier Pierre-Philippe Thomire.

Paris around 1810

Height 70.5 centimeters !

Intended to hold flowers or fruit, this wonderful centerpiece was part of a "surtout de table", an elaborate dining service, which was presented on a long mirrored tray in the center of a large dining table.

This type of service was developed in France during the reign of Napoleon I and, in the wake of his various conquests.

Pierre-Philippe Thomire (1751 - 1843), who was elected engraver to the Emperor in 1809 in recognition of his services to Napoleon, created some of the most beautiful and sumptuous especially for the Emperor and members of his court imperial.

Considered the greatest foundry-carver of his time, he first trained as a sculptor alongside Houdon and Pajou at the Académie de Saint-Luc. He then followed his father's trade as a bronze worker and became a master in 1772.

Two years later, he became an apprentice to the famous engraver Pierre Gouthière (1732 - 1813), after whom he acquired the art of fine engraving and the gilding of bronzes.

Our centerpiece is in good condition (in its original condition).

A very rare piece of gigantic size.
