Description

Pretty Display cabinet with cut sides in brass opening through a door on the front. Inside there are 4 height-adjustable and removable glass shelves. The funds are mirrored. It is topped by a removable neo-classic style capital. This one is not original. It was subsequently created by a decorator for a set. This marquee can be easily removed because it is simply placed on the window. The window rests on 4 feet. 3 Directoire-Empire style bronze legs and a rear leg in tinted steel. This foot was changed a long time ago following a breakage of the original foot. This foot being at the back, the difference is hardly visible at first glance. The window has its lock and locks. Work from the house of Muller and Domange in Paris. (unsigned) Around 1900. Good condition.Dimensions:- Height: 185 cm
