Description

Elegant paschal candle holder.... straddling two centuries.... from very far away in the cathedral, we only see the slender shape and the candle which shines, getting closer to the altar, we discover that this pedestal tapered is all in wood, "old oak" color... Certainly old since if you get closer, you can see the Gothic scrolls of the base. triangular... from the 18th century. Halfway to the pass, the color of the wood varies slightly, obviously, we are in the 19th century... hence my title of elegant platypus style. The original ball feet have disappeared, PS if you don't like candles, you can always put a little drooping fern there.... or what else? Given the size outside the "global relay" format, shipping costs are a little higher... personal delivery preferred...
