Description

These two oval works by Émile Brunet represent pastoral and romantic scenes, characteristic of his style. The first painting shows several figures in a natural and architectural setting, with a seated woman in the foreground and another female figure near a column in the background. The second painting depicts an embracing couple in a pastoral landscape, with rolling hills, an arched bridge, and a tower in the background. The soft colors and sketched lines create a dreamy and idyllic atmosphere in both works. The matching gold frames emphasize the harmony and complementarity of the scenes, making this pair a perfect joint display. These pendants illustrate Brunet's ability to capture intimate and moving moments with great artistic sensitivity.
