

Old Japanese Silk Curtain

250 EUR

Period : 20th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Silk

Width : 96

Height : 270

Description

Raw silk cloth printed with a Japanese motif with flowers and birds, transformed into a roman blind: at the top, on the back, a velcro that allows you to hang the curtain, and along the entire height two ivory trimmings with rings intended to accommodate a cord that allows you to lift the curtain "like a package".

This curtain has been used but certainly not exposed to the rays of light otherwise it would not have arrived until today in this state of excellent conservation: there are no defects to report other than a very small sign of wear barely visible against the light (see last photo)
