There is a calm and tranquility to his works, reminiscent of the paintings of Alfred Stevens.

He exhibited at the Antwerp Salon in 1861 where he received an award. He also participated in exhibitions at the Brussels Salon in 1863 and 1864, as well as in an exhibition in London in 1874.

His paintings are kept at the KMSKB in Brussels, in a museum in Louvain, at the Musée d'Orsay (Paris) with a inn scene, at the Nantes Museum and in a museum in Philadelphia (USA).
