Description

Manago's painting presents an orientalist scene rich in detail and color, typical of the end of the 19th century. The artist captured characteristic elements of the Orient with great precision. The colors used are vibrant and rich, evoking the warmth and exoticism of the place. The light in the painting also plays an important role, highlighting the contrasts and creating a captivating atmosphere. Manago's painting technique, probably influenced by the great orientalist masters of his time, must reflect great know-how and remarkable artistic mastery. important golden frame from the 19th century highlighting the orientalist scene. dimensions with frame: 78x70 cm
