Description

Two stylized women, classically dressed but with modern Art Deco hairstyles, raise their heads offering a deep haircut in their hands. The subtle shapes and avant-garde aesthetic of this piece place it in Art Deco, an artistic style that appeared in 1920 and whose influence extended until the mid-20th century in certain countries. He sought to renew all disciplines, defending the value of the technological progress of the time and the new sciences of the time. The piece is completed by a molded glass bobeche. The lamp is in working order.
