Description

China rug, Sanghai all in tencel silk with symmetrical floral pattern.
Velvet with bas-relief effect.

The hand-woven Shanghai rug represents the epitome of craftsmanship.
During the weaving process, each pile of the rug is hand dyed and cut to create a beautiful shimmering and nuanced effect, providing an exclusive rug that reflects light.

Tencel, also called lyocell, is an ecological material produced from wood pulp. Tencel is very popular in textiles, because it is a breathable and resistant fabric, completely comparable to silk.

Its foliage and flowers mingle in complex symmetrical compositions with brilliant colors.
At the edges of the main field we can observe the dazzling Camellia, a romantic flower native to Eastern Asia which symbolizes strength.
The famous couturier Cocco Chanel said :
"Camellias are so beautiful that they don't need perfume to charm us."

Timeless, this floral rug (all in silk) with a quilted effect, lying on a powdery sand background, will add a vintage tone to your interior.

Size : 350x247 cm
Condition : slightly yellowed white kilim, wear to the silk on the green border.
Throughout the carpet, you will notice color differences due to the tencel silk which makes it appear like white spots to be taken into account.
It remains in good general condition.
The carpet was taken in natural light outdoors, in an interior, the contrast of colors will be much less visible.

The rug has been professionally washed.
