Description

Stained glass window depicting a couple in 17th century clothing.

The woman is raising a glass of beer in one hand and holding her purse in the other. She represents hospitality, prosperity and abundance. Above her is painted the portrait of a young man and below her a war scene.

The man, meanwhile, is holding a halberd and wearing a short sword at his belt. He positions himself as a protector. Below him is painted a duel scene and above him, the portrait of a young woman.

The stained glass windows are signed "TD", initialed by Théodore Donzet.

Colorless cathedral glass and colored glass.

Enamel painting, silver yellow, grisaille. Lead
