Description

A large bronze vajra. CHARACTERISTICS OF THE VAJRA (thanks Internet) The Vajra is an important symbol and ritual tool in Hinduism and Buddhism. This Sanskrit word means both "diamond" and "lightning". It represents indestructibility and immutability, allowing all obstacles to be overcome. The Vajra has different names depending on languages and regions. The name Dorje is also used as a male given name in Tibet and Bhutan, while in Mongolia it becomes Dorj. This one, with five "branches" including the central axis, is finely cast, the outer branches emerging from very finely executed makara mouths. Length 34cm Weight 2kg For any information 0778337598
