Description

Charming Martin varnish message case dating from the 18th century.

The case is oblong, in light blue Martin varnish on a wooden core. An engraved silver ring highlights the opening.

The protruding part of the body is made of scale.

These cases made it possible to exchange letters discreetly and elegantly between friends or loved ones.

The setting bears a very small illegible hallmark, probably a discharge hallmark for very small silver works.

A moving object that bears witness to the art of living under the Ancien Régime. This example is particularly interesting due to its unusual small size, which makes it particularly charming.

9.8cm long

2.5 cm in diameter

19.22 grams

Good condition. Small cracks and discoloration to Martin varnish. A small silver ring is probably missing from the opening of the cap.
