Description

This display unit in rosewood veneer, a precious wood sought after for its aesthetics, opens with a curved door with a miter-cut frame, adding a touch of elegance. This door, dark with a Martin varnish panel surrounded by bronze rods and representing a gallant scene, is equipped with a functional original lock with entrance and key. The interior offers a fixed shelf. The slightly curved sides also present a bucolic scene. The crosspiece is decorated with a lamp base. The recessed upper part is glazed, it allows valuable objects to be displayed and protected. Furthermore, equipped with a lock with entry and key, this door also opens onto a fixed shelf. Dressed with an ingot mold and a bronze acanthus leaf pediment, refined details typical of the Napoleon III style, the cornice is slightly
