Description

Stained glass windows in smooth yellow tinted glass, painted in grisaille and enamels. In the upper part of each stained glass window, vases containing flowers and feathers. In the center of the medallions on a blue background presenting attributes of painting, stained glass and architecture. Ribbons connect the different elements of the stained glass windows. A dark beige colored net is animated by men's profiles in the upper part and frames each stained glass window. Under the medallions, cartridges. In one of the cartridges, a saying in Old Flemish is calligraphed: "Lui en lekker en veel meugen zyn dry dingen die niet deugen" which we translated as "Laziness, dilettantism and gluttony, these three character traits which are not worth Nothing". The stained glass windows are signed
