Description

This small candle or oil night light is mounted on two rods in its upper axis. These rods are themselves fixed on a plate, so the night light is suspended and tilts to always remain in position, which allows you to move with it. Better, thanks to its ring, you can also hang it on the wall since the night light invariably goes vertical. It is made of silver metal, the silvering of which is partially erased by years of friction, revealing the original gilding. The cabochons are different colors and she still has her glass cup for the oil.
