Signed and dated 1957 lower right

For Jean Hélion, objects are pure Objects in the rarefied air of the painting and create a strangeness by the object being displaced from its usual use. These are objects that one day struck him, separately or together. Any subject depicted on the canvas must have something seen.

Jean Hélion crosses the 20th century, with its wars, fascism, the Cold War, communist totalitarianism, and opposes all this as an idealist man to create a happy, harmonious order like the
