In 1945 he founded a cooperative group "Tapisserie de France" while continuing to be a member of the Association of Tapestry Painters and Cardboard Makers.He produces various works, tapestries and rugs, paintings and watercolors. Architecture and frescoes are for him the best points of comparison: he loves their logic and simplicity and he was able to draw inspiration from them with great economy of means.Some of his carpets are kept at the Mobilier national in Paris.Dimensions: 297x200 cmCondition: visible wear, a round spot at the top right in the barely
