Description

A rare trim in Meissen porcelain and very finely chiseled and gilded bronze from the Louis XV period. It is composed of a clock and two candelabras. The clock is made up of three porcelain child figures playing Colin-Maillard, two of which rest on the gilded bronze terrace and the third surmounting the dial. It is decorated with gilded bronze branches decorated with numerous porcelain flowers. The candelabra have two arms of light decorated with flowers and decorated with a man for one and a woman for the other, both represented during the grape harvest festival. Very beautiful mercury gilding and very fine carving. Perfect state of conservation of the whole. The Meissen porcelain and the gilded bronze setting are both from the Louis XV period.
