

PROANTIC
LE PLUS BEAU CATALOGUE D'ANTIQUITES

Salome And The Beheading Of John The Baptist, Florentine School From The Beginning Of The 17th

7 500 EUR

Signature : Anonyme florentin

Period : 17th century

Condition : Bon état

Material : Oil painting

Width : 1m68

Height : 1m45

Description

Oil on canvas (1m25 x 1m50) and its gilded wooden frame, and painted from the 18th century (1m45 x 1m68). Sold with a certificate of authenticity. Possibility of payment facilities.

This episode from the New Testament is the subject of abundant Christian iconography. There are two sources about John's death: Book XVIII of Jewish Antiquities by Flavius Josephus and the Gospels. In the New Testament, a "daughter of Herodias" (usually identified by Christian tradition as Salome) is the protagonist of an episode from the gospels according to Matthew and Mark: the daughter of Herodias dances before Herod Antipas who is her step-in-law. father (maybe his father). Charmed, he grants her what she wants. On the advice of her mother, she then asked for the head of John the Baptist, which

Dealer

Galerie de Beauregard

Peintures de chevalet (XVII ET XVIII siècles)

Mobile : 0033 (0) 611140906

Village suisse 78 Avenue de Suffren

Paris 75015

Herod Antipas had brought on a platter.