Description

This Cuban mahogany table has an oval top. This top rests on concave consoles whose facade has fixed grooves dressed in a bronze composition. The whole rests on a solid Cuban mahogany top arranged open book. Each tray is surrounded by an openwork gallery. At the ends of the large tray we find two bronze handles. The latter rests on four legs turned into a spindle with fixed grooves, with a collar in the upper part, asparagus and a collar in the lower part. These feet are joined by four concave elements forming a spacer, the upper part of which has a superimposed wooden element, with moldings and on top a bronze flower. The feet continue in a spindle shape and end in a ball hoof.  Period: 1st part 19th Century Excellent condition after restoration in our workshop. Waxed finish on hard base.
