Description

Beautiful Renaissance walnut chest of drawers with small dimensions, characterized by carvings and panel decorations both on the drawers and on the sides. This piece of furniture is embellished with carved and gilded finishes, typical of high-period furniture, such as the caryatids on the sides and the vegetal braids on the drawers on the front. With its four large drawers, this chest of drawers was originally intended for the sacristy and comes from the private chapel of Villa L'Eremo located near Florence. Its beautiful proportions and measurements make it easy to place in any environment, adding a touch of taste and elegance. Manufacturing attributable to the typical Tuscan/Siena cabinet-making of the late 16th century.
