Description

BRUN-LATRIGE repeating PISTOL

Saint-Etienne, France, circa 1890

Total length Overall: 11.3 cm; Length. Barrel: 6.6 cm; Caliber: 5 mm

BRUN" or 'BRUN LATRIGE' mechanical repeating pistol with manual reset and central percussion, capable of firing ten shots. Rifled, fluted barrel.

The ring-shaped trigger guard, integral with the barrel, also serves as a trigger. When pressed, the trigger guard retracts into a sleeve to confine a cartridge, which is then struck. Once the barrel has returned to the front, the tongue on the right-hand side of the frame acts as an ejector. The stock plates are molded and glued together; the decoration on one side depicts a man
