exceptional artistic creations, inspired by nature and mythology. This production center, located in the south of France, reached its peak in the 18th century, and this plate is a magnificent example. Our plate dates from the mid-to-late 18th century, a period when Moustiers earthenware makers began to diversify their color palette, adding green, yellow and manganese to their creations. The exclusive use of green on this plate speaks to a time when each piece was a unique work of art.
