Description

Antique vase in the shape of a dragon. A decorative Chinese brass flower urn with a pronounced oriental flavor, dating from the Victorian period, circa 1900. o Remarkably explicit in detail and iconography o Displays a desirable aged patina throughout o The ornate brass exhibits a beautiful golden tone and a patina commensurate with age o Decorated with stunning dragon figures and other incidental iconography o Wrapped around the neck of the vase, the upper dragon sits with its mouth open to one side o Two wonderfully three-dimensional dragons adorn the main body, with prominent horns o Where the tails meet at the rear, engraved flowers and geometric designs decorate the ground o The fully formed character markings of each base are found in a final dragon emblem.
