Description

Louis XV style chest of drawers, made of an oak frame and rosewood veneer, all topped with marble.

It is decorated with marquetry called "butterfly wings" and bronze ornamentations.

It has two drawers without a crossbar separating them, and curved sides.

The first drawer has a lock with its key and works perfectly.

The second drawer does not have a lock, but when you lock the lock on the first drawer, it also locks both.

Very good general condition, we note a small lack of veneer on the right rear foot.

French work from the second part of the 20th century.
