Description

Etching with chisel highlights of the Hôtel Royal des Invalides This 17th century etching depicts in detail the Hôtel Royal des Invalides in Paris, an emblematic building built during the reign of Louis XIV between 1670 and 1676, with the dome completed in 1708. Created around 1679-1680 by Fer Nicolas (1646-1720) and after Marot Jean (around 1619-1679), this work shows two main views: Elevation of the eastern facade: Illustrating the eastern facade of the Hôtel des Invalides which faces Paris, this view highlights architectural details like the windows, roofs and the large dome of the church. Profile and elevation of the general section: Offering a cross section of the building, this part shows the interior of the Hôtel des Invalides and its two churches, including the layout of the interior
