Description

A superb-looking late 19th-century Anglo-Indian trunk with original ribbed iron fittings, brass-bound with decorative mounts, and carrying handles. Traditionally used as patio storage in Indian havelis, it could be used as a stunning decorative coffee table or side table. The early timbers have a rich color and patina. This trunk has become a rarity as there are very few left that can still be sourced. A bold and decorative statement for a variety of interiors.
