J.ROQUE Jean ROQUE was a great painter born in Marseille in 1880, died at 45 years He was a student of Théodore Jourdan at the Ecole des Beaux-Arts in Marseille then of Gérôme and Humbert in Paris. His works appear in various museums. He frequents the Montmartre district and meets many painters there, including Steinlen who painted his portrait. He particularly liked the landscapes of his native Provence to which he devoted most of his work. A contemporary of Louis-Mathieu Verdilhan and Albert Marquet, we find the same modernity in the painting of Jean Roque. He likes to highlight the energy of simple moments through the purity of his forms
