Description

Elegant mid-18th century bedside table, in blond walnut, with a discreet drawer in the belt on the side. With its simple and slender shapes, because it is quite high (which is logical because the beds in the 18th century were higher than today) it is either Provencal or from northern Italy (Geneva or Turin). The feet end in a shell, on sabots, which have been restored (the wear of time, of good quality). Some traces of old chirons, the top stained, but solid and pretty light patina.
