Description

This mahogany bar cabinet, attributed to the Parisian house Edouard Diot, opens, at the top, with a glazed door with beveled glass with an original functional lock, bronze entry and key. When open, this door gives access to a space darkened by a mirror and decorated with a glass shelf. This set, supported by consoles profiled on the uprights, offers a niche with a recessed molded panel. The lower part opens with a drawer with an authentic lock, net entry and bronze handle, with flower decorations, characteristic of the Diot house. Below, this cabinet also opens with a flap with a central panel with a knockout equipped with a functional lock which is also original. This flap, held by brass compasses, contains a storage space to ideally allow the storage of bottles. This bar cabinet ends
