Description

Formerly tinned chased copper dish, heavily decorated. Signed twice and dated on the outer rim and below.

See photos Originating from Turkestan in Central Asia in the mid-19th century.

Dated in Persian 1270 or 1854 of our calendar.

A fine epigraphic decoration, a frieze of interlacing surrounds a sun or inscribed in the center what appears to be a fox.

A light frieze encircles the whole itself surrounded by three cartouches decorated with friezes and interspersed with three flowers.

The dish is signed and has inscriptions in a cartouche in beautiful calligraphy.

The patina is superb on the inside and outside of the high-rimmed tray.
