Description

Gilded bronze cup or drageoir on foot, decorated with putti and chimeras, with a belly in cut and silvered brass mesh, on a white marble base

Very original and delicate object, despite the lack of a glass verrine in the belly, and some chips in the marble

Maison Giroux (a family business) was a Parisian manufacturer of furniture and luxury objects intended for bourgeois and aristocratic customers. Very often inspired by creations from past centuries, Maison Giroux does not hesitate to innovate and mix new techniques: furniture inlaid with porcelain, toys, sewing kits, mirrors. The taste and refinement of their production continues and the objects/furniture are still highly sought
