Description

French table clock from the early 1900s, crafted in the Art Deco style, an artistic movement known for its elegant geometric lines and fusion of luxurious materials. The main body of the clock is made of bronze-colored metal, while the marble base adds stability and refinement to the overall design.

The clock is adorned with a reclining lady figure, depicted in a relaxed pose and dressed in an evening gown typical of the Art Deco era. Her attire includes a bandana framing her head, giving her an exotic and sophisticated appearance. The face and hands, crafted from a precious material like ivory, highlight the artisan's meticulous attention to detail and elegance.

This piece not only represents the femininity and grace of the 1920s but also embodies the
